ABOUT ME

Hello! My name is Daria and I'm a Denver-based web developer. I've always been passionate about learning foreign languages and later on in life I've discovered that learning programming languages is even more exciting and powerful. Just like any language coding requires hours of studying and practice but once you master at least basic skills your abilities are limitless. I strongly believe in constant learning and self-improvement that is why IT industry is the best peak for me. The world needs new ideas and solutions and I am willing to contribute.
