ABOUT ME

My name is Daria Harper and I am a Denver-based web developer. I've always been passionate about learning foreign languages and later on in life I have discovered that learning programming languages is even more exciting and powerful. Just like any skill coding requires hours of studying and practice but once you master at least basics your abilities are limitless. I strongly believe in constant learning and self-improvement that is why IT industry is the best field to be in.
The world needs new ideas and solutions and I am willing to contribute.
